

"It took me all of five seconds to sicken of being a pop star but it was an honour on an artistic level to know that we were walking in the footsteps of the greats and contributing to the illustrious history of British pop music. We held the record for consecutive entries at number one for more than twenty years but I am saddened by the fact that entering at number one is now an irrelevance, and anyway, the best single ever released was penny lane backed with strawberry fields and it didn't even reach number one."
